

From Burlington County College:

Cheryl Hartman – Cheryl will receive her associate degree in liberal arts later this month. She plans to earn her bachelor's and master's degrees and become an elementary school teacher.

As an active member of the Chi Iota Chapter, Cheryl traveled to Indonesia to help victims of the tsunami. She raised money for building materials, taught English to Indonesian children, and contributed to a new water system that gave villagers a clean water supply.

She also volunteers at numerous nursing homes in Philadelphia and gives a lot of time to her church, serving as a librarian, proofreader, teacher, and support counselor for single moms.

On campus, Cheryl is a member of the Education Club and is its representative on SGA. She also volunteers with the College's Academic Career Discovery Series, where she informs prospective students and their parents about the educational opportunities available at Burlington County College.
